Last updated 8 January 2024

Receiving your letter

You may receive a letter if the income amount that your employer (or employers if you have more than one job) reported to us doesn't match the amount in your tax return.

Employment income is the money you receive from working.

If you have a myGov account linked to us, we will send the letter to your myGov inbox. It will have one of the following titles:

- We have found an error in your income tax return
- We have received more information about your income tax return.

If you don't have a myGov account, we'll send the letter to the most recent postal address we have for you.

If you use a registered tax agent, a copy of the letter will be available for them to view in communication history in Online services for agents. They can use this to review communications and respond on your behalf.

What to do

You need to review the income summary and compare the information with your records. You can then determine if you agree or disagree.

If you have a question about your data-matching letter, phone us on 1300 768 912, and select option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday:

- quoting the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- using the words 'data matching'.

Employment income schedule – sample

Below is a sample of the employment income schedule on the letter. Keep in mind that your letter will have your own details and may not look exactly like this. The definitions will help explain your schedule.

Definitions to understand your schedule

The following definitions will help you to understand your schedule:

- Amount included in your return – the income amount you declared for the relevant item or label in your tax return.
- Amount reported to us by a third party – the amount reported by the employer (or employers).
- Difference – the amount of income not declared in your return, or the amount of tax withheld you claimed that is above the total credit advised by your employer (or employers).
- Each table relates to an item or label in your tax return – each will show you what you reported in your tax return.
- Payer ABN – each employer's Australian business number for the employment income reported to us.
- Source of income or tax withheld – all employment income that has been reported to us by your employer (or employers).

Income statement not tax ready sets out what you can do if:

- your employer hasn't finalised your income statement
- you can't get or locate your payment summary.

Single Touch Payroll for employees explains the nature of the tax and super information you receive when your employer pays you.

If you agree

If you agree with the information in the letter, you can advise us of your decision, within 28 days, through ATO online services using the ATO app or your myGov account.

Log in to ATO online services, then:

- select Manage tax returns
- select Pending ATO amendments
- select Agree with amendment.

We will process the amendment and send you an amended notice of assessment.

Alternately, if we don't hear from you, we will change your tax return to include the information your employer provided. We will send you an amended notice of assessment after 28 days, which may result in more interest charges.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

If you disagree

If you disagree with the amounts reported, you have 28 days to respond. You must also provide supporting documents that show how the amounts are incorrect.

If we don't receive a response from you within 28 days, we will automatically amend your tax return with the information we have from your employer. You will then receive an amended assessment. Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

If you disagree with the information your employer reported, you can contact us:

- online through ATO online services using the ATO app or your myGov account – log in to ATO online services, then
 - select Manage tax returns
 - select Pending ATO amendments
 - select Disagree with amendment
 - select a reason for disagreeing
 - upload your supporting documents
- by mail to
Australian Taxation Office
PO Box 3543
ALBURY NSW 2640
- by email us at datamatchingteam@ato.gov.au

The internet is not a secure environment and we don't control the path of inbound and outbound emails. If you choose to email us, we can't guarantee the privacy of your personal information.

Remember to:

- quote the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- use the words 'data matching'.

We will assess your response and, once finalised, send you an amended notice of assessment. The case officer reviewing your supporting documents may contact you if we need additional information.

If we don't receive a response from you in 28 days, we will automatically amend your tax return with the information we have from your employer. You will then receive an amended notice of assessment.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

Supporting documents

We may ask you to provide the following supporting documents if you disagree with the information in the letter about your employment income:

- an income statement, payment summary or payslips from employers you had during the identified financial year
- any amended payment summaries or income statements from your employer (or employers)
- a final payslip that provides details of your annual salary
- a full year bank statement showing deposits.

You or your tax professional can send this information to us.

- your payment summary from the relevant agencies
- a letter from any agencies that paid your allowance, pension, or payment stating the amount you received.

QC 41708

Interest income letter

What to do if you get a data matching letter from us about your interest income.

Last updated 8 January 2024

Receiving your letter

We may send you a letter about interest income you declared in your tax return if it doesn't match the interest amount a financial institution reports it paid to you.

The letter will include an interest income summary that compares the details you declared in your tax return with the information your financial institution reported to us.

If you have a myGov account linked to us, we'll send the letter to your myGov Inbox titled Have you included all information in your income tax return?.

If you don't have a myGov account, we'll send the letter to the most recent postal address we have for you.

What to do

You need to review the interest income summary and compare the information with your records (including any accounts you closed during the year). You can then determine if you agree or disagree with this information.

You may also need to contact your financial institution if the details on the summary don't seem correct.

Ensure you've declared your interest income correctly for the type of account you hold:

- Individuals accounts – if you've earned interest from an account that's only in your name, you must declare it.
- Accounts held for a child – the interest must be declared by the person who owns or uses the funds in the account.
- Accounts held in trust – the interest must be declared by the person who has beneficial ownership of the funds (that is, the person who benefits from the funds or has the power to influence transaction decisions).
- Joint accounts
 - We assume each account holder has an equal beneficial ownership of the funds, so the interest earned or paid is apportioned equally between all account holders, as examples
 - 50% each for 2 account holders
 - 25% each for 4 account holders).
 - If the actual beneficial ownership of the account is not in equal shares, you'll need to provide supporting documents that demonstrate your share.

For more information on joint accounts, including children's savings accounts, see TD 2017/11 Income tax: who should be assessed to interest on bank accounts?

If you have a question, phone us on 1300 768 912 and select option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday:

- quoting the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- using the words 'data matching'.

Interest income summary – sample

Below is a sample interest summary. Keep in mind it will have the relevant information from your tax return compared with information we hold and may not look exactly the same. Use the definitions to help you understand your schedule.

Sample: Interest income summary for the year ended 30 June <CCYY>

Northwest Banking Corporation	935415658/I	$277	$0.00

Note:

- The /I at the end of the account number represents an individual account.
- The /J at the end of the account number represents a joint account and this is your share of the interest.

Schedule definitions

The following definitions will help you understand your schedule:

- Account number – the account number for each source of interest reported to us.
- Amount reported to us by a third party – the total amount of interest income and tax withheld, as reported to us by financial institutions.
- Amount included in your return – the total amount of interest income and tax withheld you declared in your tax return.
- Difference – the difference between the interest you declared on your tax return and the interest amounts reported to us by financial institutions.
- Income – the interest amount reported to us.
- Payer ABN – the Australian business number of the financial institution that reported to us.
- Source of income – a list of each source of interest paid to you, as reported to us by financial institutions.
- Tax withheld – the amount of tax withheld reported to us.

If you agree

If you agree with our information, you don't need to do anything. We'll send you an amended notice of assessment 28 days after the date shown on your letter. If you have a myGov account linked to ATO online services, we'll send your amended notice to your myGov inbox.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

Supporting documents

If you disagree with information in our letter about your interest income, we may ask you to provide these supporting documents:

- bank statements covering the whole financial year
- your end-of-financial-year statement notice
- trust documents
- a letter from your financial institution confirming the total interest paid in the financial year.

For joint accounts, we may ask you to provide supporting documents that show:

- the source of the funds (for example, bank deposit records)
- the portion and nature of the contributions
- who used the funds and interest.

Taxable government grants and payments letter

What to do if you get a taxable government grants and payments letter and you disagree with the details we provided.

Last updated 19 December 2022

Receiving your letter

You may receive a letter if the information we receive indicates you obtained a government grant or payment and you did not include this income in your tax return.

In line with our taxable government grants and payments data-matching protocol, we request data from various federal, state and local government agencies to match with information we hold.

The letter will include a schedule showing the relevant information from your tax return compared with information we hold.

What you need to do

You need to review the taxable government grant or payment schedule and compare the information with your records. You can then determine if you agree or disagree.

If you have a question about your data-matching letter, phone us on 1300 768 912, and select option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday.

Quote the reference number from your letter when you contact us. You can find it at the top right of your letter.

Below is a sample schedule of the taxable government grant or payment schedule on the letter. Keep in mind that your letter will contain your own details and may not look exactly like this. The definitions will help explain your schedule.

Sample: taxable government grant or payment schedule

Department/council – Other gross income	00 123 456 789	$3,000	$25,000

Definitions to understand your schedule

The following definitions will help you understand your schedule:

- Tax return item and description – the relevant item on your tax return.
- Amount you declared – the amount you declared against each applicable item on your tax return.
- Discrepancy – the difference between the amount you declared on your tax return and the amount that has been reported to us.

- Proposed adjustment amount – the amount we propose to include on your tax return.
- Payer ABN – the ABN of the reporting payer for each source of income, as reported to us.
- Source of income/entity name – the name of the reporting payer for each source of income, as reported to us.
- Amount – the amount of income reported to us.

If you agree

If you agree with the information provided in the letter, you don't have to contact us or take action. We will change your tax return to include the information provided. We will send you an amended notice of assessment after 28 days.

If you realise that, in addition to the amounts we have shown, you have omitted income from other sources or from the same source in other income years, you should give us the details so we can include it in your amended assessments.

We continually check for missing, inaccurate or incomplete information on tax returns.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

If you disagree

If you disagree with the information provided, you need to let us know before the due date in your letter. You must also provide supporting documents that show how the amounts are incorrect.

You can contact us by either:

us by email, we can't guarantee the privacy of your personal information.

If you respond by the due date

Once we have assessed your response, you'll receive an amended notice of assessment. The case officer reviewing your supporting documents may contact you if we require additional information.

If you don't respond

If we don't receive a response from you within 28 days of your letter's date of issue, we'll automatically amend your tax return using the information we have. You'll then receive an amended notice of assessment.

Supporting documents

If you disagree with information in the letter about your taxable government grants and payments, we may ask you to provide supporting documents as evidence of your exemption. This may include:

- documents supplied by the agency, indicating the payment was not business-related
- bank statements for relevant review periods
- invoices issued during relevant review periods
- a letter from the agency, providing an explanation of the nature of payments made in the period under review
- payment remittance advices or summaries provided by the agency
- business schedules.

The documents we ask you to provide will depend on your individual circumstances.

Offsets letter

What to do if you get an offsets letter from us and you disagree with the details we provide.

Last updated 19 December 2022

Receiving your letter

An offset can help reduce your tax payable. To be eligible to claim an offset you must be an Australian resident for tax purposes.

You may receive a letter about offsets if you have claimed an offset in your tax return that you may not be entitled to or is incorrect.

The letter will include information on the type of offset you claimed and links to tools that will help you check your eligibility.

Depending on the type of offset letter you receive from us, it may include:

- a questionnaire for you to complete and return
- a schedule showing the discrepancy we've found.

Not all letters will include a schedule or questionnaire.

What you need to do

You need to review the information in your letter and compare the information with your records. You can then determine if you agree or disagree.

If you have a question about your data-matching letter, phone us on 1300 768 912, and select option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday.

Combined interest and dividend letter

What to do if you get a data matching letter from us about both interest and dividends.

Published 8 January 2024

Receiving your letter

We may send you a letter about interest and dividend income you declared in your tax return if it doesn't match the interest and dividend amounts reported by third-party payers.

The letter will include an income statement summary that compares the details you declared in your tax return with the information the third-party payers reported to us.

If you have a myGov account linked to us, we'll send the letter to your myGov inbox titled Have you reported all information in your tax return?

If you don't have a myGov account, we'll send the letter to the most recent postal address we have for you.

What to do

You need to review the income summary and compare the information with your records. You can then determine if you agree or disagree with the amended details.

You may also need to contact the third-party payer if the details on the income summary don't seem correct.

Check you have declared everything

For interest income, ensure you've declared your interest income correctly for the type of account you hold:

- Individuals accounts – if you've earned interest from an account that's only in your name, you must declare it.
- Accounts held for a child – the interest must be declared by the person who owns or uses the funds in the account.
- Accounts held in trust – the interest must be declared by the person who has beneficial ownership of the funds (this is, the person who benefits from the funds or has the power to influence transaction decisions).
- Joint accounts
 - We assume each account holder has an equal beneficial ownership of the funds, so the interest earned or paid is apportioned equally between all account holders, as examples
 - 50% each for 2 account holders
 - 25% each for 4 account holders.
 - If the actual beneficial ownership of the account is not in equal shares, you'll need to provide supporting documents that demonstrate your share.

For dividend income, if you report your dividend income in another entity's tax return (for example, in a partnership, trust, company or superannuation fund tax return), you need to advise us of the tax file number (TFN) and dividend amounts shown on that tax return.

You should ask the company to record that TFN on its register. This will help match the dividends to the correct tax return in future.

If you have a question, phone us on 1300 768 912 and select option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday:

- quoting the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- using the words 'data matching'.

Income statement summary – sample

Below is a sample income statement summary. Keep in mind it will contain the relevant information from your tax return compared with information we hold and may not look exactly the same. Use the definitions to help you understand your summary.

Income statement summary for year ended 30 June <CCYY>

Income statement summary

Amount	Income	Tax withheld/ credit reported
Amount reported to us by a third party	$1,722	$120
Amount included in your return	$492	$0
Difference	$1,230	$120

Breakdown of income as reported by third parties

Source of income	Payer ABN/ account number	Income	Tax withheld/ credit reported
Investment Company Pty Ltd	9999999	$953	$120
ABC Finance	3541586/1	$492	$0
Northwest Banking Corporation	935415658/1	$277	$0

Note:

- The /I at the end of the account number represents an individual account.
- The /J at the end of the account number represents a joint account and this is your share of the interest.

Summary definitions

The following definitions will help you understand your income statement summary:

- Amount included in your return – the total amount of income and tax withheld (if interest income) or credit reported (dividend franking credit) you declared in your tax return.
- Account number – the account number for each source of interest or dividend income reported to us.
- Amount reported to us by a third party – the total amount of income and tax withheld (if interest income) or credit reported (dividend franking credit), as reported to us by the third-party payer (for example, financial institutions or companies).
- Credit reported – the credit amount reported to us by companies and by you in your tax return. This is also called a franking credit.
- Difference – the difference between the income and tax withheld (if interest income) or credit reported (dividend franking credit) you declared in your tax return, and the amounts reported to us by third-party payers.
- Income – the interest/ dividend amount reported to us.
- Payer ABN – the Australian business number of the third-party payer who reported to us.
- Source of income – a list of each source of income paid to you as reported to us by the third-party payer.
- Tax withheld – the amount of tax withheld reported to us.

The internet is not a secure environment and we don't control the path of inbound and outbound emails. If you choose to email us, we can't guarantee the privacy of your personal information.

Once we've assessed your response, you'll receive an amended notice of assessment. The case officer reviewing your supporting documents may contact you if we need additional information.

If we don't receive a response from you within 28 days of your letter's date of issue, we'll automatically amend your tax return using the information we have. You'll then receive an amended notice of assessment.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

Supporting documents

If you disagree with information in our letter about your interest income, we may ask you to provide these supporting documents:

- bank statements covering the whole financial year
- your end-of-financial-year statement notice
- trust documents
- a letter from your financial institution confirming the total interest paid in the financial year.

For joint accounts, we may ask you to provide supporting documents that show:

- the source of the funds (for example, bank deposit records)
- the portion and nature of the contributions
- who used the funds and interest.

If you disagree with information contained in the letter from us about your dividend income, we may ask you to provide these supporting documents:

- dividend statements
- statements showing the income has been declared in an associated tax return – for example, in a partnership, trust, company or superannuation fund tax return.

Dividend income letter

What to do if you get a data matching letter about dividend income.

Last updated 8 January 2024

Receiving your letter

We may send you a letter about dividend income you declared in your tax return if it doesn't match the dividend amount a company reports it paid to you.

The letter will include a dividend income summary that compares the details you declared in your tax return with the information the company reported to us.

If you have a myGov account linked to us, we'll send the letter to your myGov Inbox titled Have you included all information in your income tax return?.

If you don't have a myGov account, we'll send the letter to the most recent postal address we have for you.

What to do

You need to review the income summary and compare the information with your records. You can then determine if you agree or disagree with the amended details.

If you have a question, phone us on 1300 768 912 and select option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday:

- quoting the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- using the words 'data matching'.

If you report your dividend income in another entity's tax return (for example, a partnership, trust, company or superannuation fund), you need to advise us of the tax file number (TFN) and dividend amounts shown on that tax return.

You should ask the company to record that TFN on its register. This will help match the dividends to the correct tax return in future.

Dividend income summary – sample

Partnership, trust, or managed fund distribution letter

What to do if you get a data matching letter about partnership, trust or managed fund distributions.

Last updated 4 September 2024

Receiving your letter

We may send you a letter if a partnership, trust, or managed fund reports distribution amounts to us and these don't match the amounts you declared in your tax return.

The letter will include a summary that compares the amounts you declare in your tax return with the information the partnership, trust, or managed fund reports to us.

Generally, as a beneficiary of a trust you must include your share (your entitlement) of the net income of the trust in your tax return and pay tax on it, even if you weren't paid the income from the trust.

If you have a myGov account linked to us, we'll send the letter to your myGov inbox. It will have the title, Have you included all information in your tax return?

If you don't have a myGov account, we'll send the letter to the most recent postal address that we have for you.

What you need to do

You need to review the summary and compare the information it contains with your records. You can then determine if you agree or disagree with this information.

If you have a question, phone us on 1300 768 912 and select option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday:

- quoting the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- using the words 'data matching'.

Distribution summary – sample

The following is an example of the summary included with your letter. Keep in mind that your summary will contain the relevant information from your tax return compared with the information reported to us and may not look exactly the same. Use the definitions to help you understand your summary.

Table 1: Summary for the income year ending 30 June 2022

Code	Distributions reported to us	Amount included in your return	Difference
TNI	$1,986.74	$1,708.00	$284.74
FCT	$174.86	$295.59	$120.73

Table 2: Breakdown of distributions as reported by third parties

Code	Source of distribution	Payer ABN/ Account number	Amount of distribution
------	------------------------	---------------------------	------------------------

TNI	ACBD Invest Trust	123 456 789 10	$1,986.74
FCT	XYZ Trust	9876543210 /J	$174.86

Note:

- The /I at the end of the account number represents an investment held individually.
- The /J at the end of the account number represents an investment held jointly, and this is your share of the distribution amount.

Definitions to understand your summary

The following definitions will help you understand your summary:

- Amount included in your return – the amount you declared in your tax return for the corresponding code.
- Amount of distribution – the amount reported to us by each source of distribution for each code.
- Code – a 3 letter code indicating the type of distribution reported to us. (a table titled Explanation of the codes is included with your letter).
- Difference – the difference between the distributions reported to us and the amount included in your return for each code. A negative difference amount in your summary represents either:
 - an income amount that was over-reported, or
 - a tax credit, offset or deduction amount that you may have an entitlement to.
- Distributions reported to us – the distribution amount reported to us from a partnership, trust, or a managed fund for the corresponding code.
- Payer ABN/Account number – the Australian business number of the source of distribution or your account number that is held on file by the source of distribution.
- Source of distribution – the name of the partnership, trust, or managed fund that reported the distribution amounts to us.

If you agree

If you agree with the information in your summary, you don't need to do anything. We'll change your income tax return to include the amounts in your summary.

We will then send you an amended notice of assessment 28 days after the date we issued your letter.

If you have a myGov account linked to ATO online services, your amended notice of assessment will be sent to your myGov inbox.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any outstanding amounts by the due date.

If you disagree

If you disagree with the information in your summary, you have 28 days to respond. You must:

- tell us what is incorrect
- provide supporting documents that show how the amounts are incorrect.

You can contact us by:

- mail to
Australian Taxation Office
PO Box 3543
ALBURY NSW 2640
- phone 1300 768 912 and selecting option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday
- email datamatchingteam@ato.gov.au

The internet isn't a secure environment and we don't control the path of inbound and outbound emails. If you choose to email us, we can't guarantee the privacy of your personal information.

Remember to:

- quote the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- use the words 'data matching'.

Once we've assessed your response, we will advise you of the outcome. The officer reviewing your supporting documents may contact you if we need additional information.

If you don't respond

If we don't receive a response from you within 28 days of your letter's date of issue, we'll:

- automatically amend your tax return using the information we have
- send you an amended notice of assessment.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

Supporting documents

If you disagree with the information in your summary, we may ask you to provide the following supporting documents:

- a copy of your annual tax statement or statement of distribution you received from the source of distribution confirming the amounts in your tax return
- a financial statement or breakdown you received from the source of distribution showing the distribution amounts
- a breakdown of how you calculated the amounts in your tax return
- an explanation why the amounts in your tax return differs to the amounts reported to us.

Where amounts reported to us by the source of distribution mismatch with the amounts they provided to you in your statement of distribution, we will (in most instances) require you to contact that source of distribution and discuss the anomaly with them. By doing this, they can correct the mismatch by either:

- issuing you an amended statement of distribution
- reporting amended amounts to us.

If you declare the amounts in an associated entity's tax return (for example, a self-managed superannuation fund), you will need to:

- provide us with the tax file number (TFN) of the associated entity
- show us that the amounts have been included in the associated entity's tax return.

You will also need to contact the source of distribution and request them to update their records with the details and TFN of the correct recipient of the distribution. This will assist us to match the distribution amounts to the correct tax return in future years.

Overdue tax return with rental income letter

What to do if you get a data matching letter about an overdue tax return that includes rental income.

Published 8 October 2025

Receiving your letter

We may send you a letter if you need to lodge an overdue tax return and our records show you have received income from a rental property.

We use data matching to help maintain trust in the tax system. This means we compare information from third parties with what you've reported to us. If information doesn't match, we may contact you to find out why.

The data we collect is from third parties, including:

- financial institutions
- property managers
- land title offices
- sharing economy platforms
- bond authorities
- insurers.

What you need to do

You should check your records and confirm if you need to lodge a tax return for the years indicated in the letter.

You may use the Do I need to lodge a tax return? tool to determine if you need to lodge.

If you need to lodge a tax return

You can lodge your tax return by collecting your records and:

- asking your registered tax agent to lodge it on your behalf
- using our online services through myGov and include all rental income and allowable deductions for your rental property.

If you don't need to lodge a tax return

If you don't think you need to lodge a tax return, you don't need to reply to the letter.

We will contact you if we need more information.

Rental income not included in lodged tax return letter

What to do if you get a data matching letter about needing to include rental income in your tax return.

Published 8 October 2025

Receiving your letter

We may send you a letter if our data suggests you have rental income that hasn't been reported in your tax return.

We collect data from third parties, including:

- financial institutions
- property managers

- land title offices
- sharing economy platforms
- bond authorities
- insurers.

What you need to do

If you receive one of these letters, it means you should check your records to confirm whether you have included all rental income received from the properties stated in the letter.

If all income has been correctly reported for the years indicated, you don't need to reply to the letter.

If you need to amend your tax return

You can amend past tax returns by:

- asking your registered tax agent to lodge the amendment on your behalf
- using our online services through myGov and include all rental income.

Last updated 8 January 2024

Receiving your letter

You may be eligible for the Medicare levy exemption if you were in an exemption category at any time in the income year.

You may receive a letter if we receive information that suggests you aren't eligible for an exemption and you claimed the Medicare levy exemption in your tax return.

The letter will include a summary that compares relevant information in your tax return with information we have.

We'll send the letter to the most recent postal address we have for you.

What to do

Review the schedule of proposed changes and compare the information with your records. You can then determine if you agree or disagree.

If you have a question, phone us on 1300 768 912 and select option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday:

- quoting the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- using the words 'data matching'.

Example: letter contents

Emily got a letter from the ATO with a schedule of proposed changes to her tax return.

It said the ATO will use the information below to correct the return if Emily didn't contact them.

Schedule of proposed changes to your 2022 tax return

Tax return item and description	Original value	New value
M1 Full levy exemption – number of days	365	0
Claim type	C	n/a

This is a sample – your letter will have your own details.

The letter will also provide the reason for proposed adjustment under the schedule of proposed changes.

If you agree

If you agree with our information, you don't need to do anything. We'll send you an amended notice of assessment 56 days after the date shown on your letter. If you have a myGov account linked to ATO online services, we'll send your amended notice to your myGov inbox.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

If you disagree

If you disagree with the details reported, you need to let us know before the due date noted in your letter. You can contact us by:

- mail to
Australian Taxation Office
PO Box 3543
ALBURY NSW 2640
- phoning 1300 768 912 and selecting option 3 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday
- emailing us at datamatchingteam@ato.gov.au

The internet isn't a secure environment and we don't control the path of inbound and outbound emails. If you choose to email us, we can't guarantee the privacy of your personal information.

If you respond within 56 days

The case officer reviewing your supporting documents may contact you if we need additional information.

If you:

- can prove your claim, you'll receive a letter advising the decision
- can't prove your claim, you'll receive an amended notice of assessment.

If you don't respond

If we don't receive a response from you within 56 days of your letter's date of issue, we'll automatically amend your tax return using the information we have. You'll then receive an amended notice of assessment.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

Supporting documents

If you disagree with the information in the letter about your Medicare levy exemption, we will ask you to provide supporting documents as evidence of your exemption. This may include:

- a Services Australia Medicare entitlement statement showing you were a temporary resident for Medicare purposes and not entitled to Medicare benefits for the relevant income year and either
 - you didn't have any dependants for that period, or
 - all your dependants were in a Medicare levy exemption category for that period
- a Services Australia Medicare entitlement statement for your dependant spouse if they are a temporary resident and not entitled to Medicare benefits for the relevant income year
- evidence you're entitled to full free medical treatment for all conditions under Defence Force arrangements or the Veterans' Affairs Repatriation Health Card (Gold Card) or repatriation arrangements.

Medicare levy surcharge letter

What to do if you get a data matching letter from us about Medicare levy surcharge (MLS).

Last updated 8 January 2024

Receiving your letter

We may send you a letter about the Medicare levy surcharge (MLS) if we receive information that shows, for all or part of the relevant year, you or any of your dependants (including your spouse):

- were not a member of a registered health fund

- did not have an appropriate level of private patient hospital insurance cover
- had family income that was above the MLS threshold.

The letter will include an MLS schedule that compares relevant information from your tax return with information we have received.

We'll send the letter to the most recent postal address we have for you.

What to do

There are 2 types of MLS letters and each requires a different action:

1. Have you reported your Medicare levy surcharge correctly?
2. Your Medicare levy surcharge may be incorrect.

For both letters, you need to review the MLS schedule and compare the information with your records. You can then determine if you agree or disagree.

Letter 1: Have you reported your Medicare levy surcharge correctly?

If you agree

If you agree with our information, you must amend your tax return as soon as possible so the information is the same as the data we hold. If you don't amend your tax return, you may be selected for an audit in the future.

To lodge your amendment, you can choose from the following options depending on your circumstances:

- Lodge your amendment online – you can submit an amendment to your tax return using our online services, which takes about 20 days to process.
- Lodge your amendment with a registered tax agent – if you use a registered tax agent, you can ask them to complete an amendment to your tax return on your behalf. They are the only people who can charge a fee.
- Lodge a paper amendment form – you can use the paper amendment form to lodge your amendment by mail, which takes up to 50 business days to process.

- Send a letter – you can write us a letter, which takes up to 50 business days to process.

If you disagree

If you disagree with the details reported, you need to let us know. You can phone us on 1300 768 912 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm, Monday to Friday and select option 3.

Remember to:

- quote the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- use the words 'data matching'.

Schedule definitions

The following definitions will help you understand your schedule:

- Income for Medicare levy surcharge (MLS) purposes – income that is used to work out whether you must pay the MLS and the rate you will pay.
 - It isn't the same as your taxable income.
 - If you have a spouse, we will use your combined income for MLS purposes.
 - It is the sum of the following items for you (and your spouse, if you have one)
 - your taxable income, including the net amount on which family trust distribution tax has been paid, (excluding any assessable First home super saver released amount)
 - your reportable fringe benefits (as reported on your income statement or payment summary)
 - your total net investment losses (the sum of your net financial investment losses and net rental property losses)
 - your reportable super contributions (the sum of your reportable employer superannuation contributions and your deductible personal superannuation contributions)
 - if you have a spouse, their share of the net income of a trust on which the trustee must pay tax and has not been included in their taxable income

- your exempt foreign employment income (if your taxable income is $1 or more).
 - If you meet both of the following conditions, you can reduce your income for MLS purposes by any taxed element of the super lump sum, other than a death benefit, that does not exceed your (or your spouse's) low-rate cap
 - You (or your spouse) are aged from your (or their) preservation age to under 60 years old.
 - You (or your spouse) received a super lump sum.
- MLS tier – this is determined by your income for MLS purposes; the rate of MLS then depends on your MLS tier.
- Private health insurance fund information – details of your private health insurance policy, as provided to us by your private health insurer. It includes the name of your fund, the type of cover and the period of cover during the financial year.
- Status – your situation (that is, couple, single, family).

Private health insurance rebate letter

What to do if you get a data matching letter from us about your private health insurance rebate (PHIR).

Last updated 17 January 2024

Receiving your letter

We may send you a letter about your private health insurance rebate (PHIR), if we receive information from your health fund that suggests you aren't entitled to the level of private health insurance rebate you claimed in your tax return.

The letter will include a schedule that compares the details you declared in your tax return with the information the health fund reports. It will also include a reason for the proposed adjustment to your PHIR details.

We'll send the letter to the most recent postal address we have for you.

What to do

There are 2 types of PHIR letters and each requires a different action:

1. Your private health insurance rebate
2. Your private health insurance rebate may be incorrect.

For both letters, you need to review the PHIR schedule and compare the information with your records. You can then determine if you agree or disagree.

Letter 1: Your private health insurance rebate

There are 2 different PHIR schedules that may be on your PHIR letter titled Your private health insurance rebate. These depend on the reason for proposed adjustment. Below are the 2 samples of PHIR schedules. Keep in mind that the schedule in your letter will have your own details and may not look exactly like this.

Use the definitions to help you understand your schedule.

Sample 1: PHIR schedule for the year ended 30 June <CCYY>

What you reported in your tax return

B – Health insurer ID	C – Membership number	J – Your share of premiums paid in the financial year	K – Your share of Australian Government rebate received	L – Ber coc
------------------------------	------------------------------	--	--	--------------------

ABC	G12345	$1,313	$381	30

Proposed changes to your tax return

B – Health insurer ID	C – Membership number	J – Your share of premiums paid in the financial year	K – Your share of Australian Government rebate received	L – Ber coc
ABC	G12345	$1,422	$395	31

We'll give one or more of the following reasons for the proposed adjustment to your PHIR details:

- Incorrect tax claim code reported – this code affects the amount of PHIR you are entitled to receive
- Automatic transfer of liability – liability owed by your spouse transferred to you because they either
 - didn't lodge a tax return
 - told us they aren't required to lodge a tax return
- Reporting error – you may have duplicated or incorrectly reported your share of premiums paid or your share of Australian government rebate received.

Sample 2: PHIR schedule for the year ended 30 June <CCYY>

Sample: PHIR schedule for the year ended 30 June <CCYY>

PHIR details	Item
The amount of family income you reported in your tax return	$185,000
Your rebate tier based on the family income you	Tier 1

reported in your tax return
Your rebate tier we have determined based on our records	Tier 3

The reason for this adjustment is because you have under reported your family income for surcharge purposes. Your income for surcharge purposes is combined with your spouse's income for surcharge purposes and determines the level of rebate you are entitled to receive.

If you agree

If you agree with our information, you don't need to do anything. We'll send you an amended notice of assessment 28 days after the date shown on your letter. If you have a myGov account linked to us, we'll send your amended notice to your myGov inbox.

Once you receive your amended notice of assessment, you'll need to pay any amounts you owe us by the due date.

If you disagree

If you disagree with the details reported, you need to let us know before the due date noted in your letter. You can contact us by:

- mail to
Australian Taxation Office
PO BOX 3543
Albury NSW 2640
- phoning us on 1300 768 912 and selecting option 3 between 8:00 am and 5:00 pm, Monday to Friday
- emailing us at datamatchingteam@ato.gov.au

The internet isn't a secure environment and we don't control the path of inbound and outbound emails. If you choose to email us, we can't guarantee the privacy of your personal information.

The case officer reviewing your supporting documents may contact you if we need additional information. If you:

- can prove your claim, you'll receive a letter advising the decision
- can't prove your claim, you'll receive an amended notice of assessment.

If we don't receive a response from you within 28 days of your letter's date of issue, we'll automatically amend your tax return using the information we have. You'll then receive an amended notice of assessment.

If you have a myGov account linked to us, we'll send your amended notice to your myGov inbox.

Supporting documents

We may ask you to provide your private health insurance statement for the period of review, showing:

- the amount of premiums you paid
- any premium reductions you received.

Letter 2: Your private health insurance rebate may be incorrect

Below is a sample PHIR schedule for the PHIR letter titled Your private health insurance rebate may be incorrect. Keep in mind that your schedule will have your own details and may not look exactly like this one.

Use the definitions to help you understand your schedule.

B – Health insurer ID	C – Membership number	J – Your share of premiums paid in the financial year	K – Your share of Australian Government rebate received	L – Benefit code
ABC	G12345	$1,422	$395	31

We'll provide one of the following reasons for the proposed adjustment to your PHIR details:

- Automatic transfer of liability – liability owed by your spouse transferred to you because they either did not lodge a tax return or told us they are not required to lodge a tax return.
- Unable to match private health insurance policy details – we haven't been able to determine you had an appropriate level of private patient hospital cover and therefore may not be eligible to claim the rebate.

If you agree

If you agree with our information, you must amend your tax return as soon as possible so the information is the same as the data we hold. If you don't amend your tax return, you may be selected for an audit in the future.

To lodge your amendment, you can choose from the following options depending on your circumstances:

- Send a letter – you can write us a letter, which takes up to 50 business days to process.

If you disagree

If you disagree with the details reported, you need to let us know. You can phone us on 1300 768 912 between 8:00 am and 5:00 pm, Monday to Friday and select option 3.

Remember to:

- quote the reference number found at the top right of your letter
- use the words 'data matching'.

Schedule definitions

The following definitions will help you understand your schedule:

- Benefit code – these codes relate to the level of rebate you are entitled to, based on age.
- Family income for surcharge purposes – the total of your income and your spouse's income using the same criteria as Income for surcharge purposes.
- Income for surcharge purposes – this is
 - the total of
 - your taxable income, including the net amount on which family trust distribution tax has been paid, (excluding any assessable First home super saver released amount)
 - your reportable fringe benefits (as reported on your income statement or payment summary)
 - your total net investment losses (which is the sum of your net financial investment losses and net rental property losses)
 - your reportable super contributions (which is the sum of your reportable employer superannuation contributions and your deductible personal superannuation contributions).
 - minus, if you were aged from your preservation age to under 60 years old, any taxed element of a super lump sum (other than a death benefit) that you received that does not exceed your low-rate cap.
- Private health insurance fund information – provides details of your private health insurance policy, as provided to us by your private health insurer. It includes the name of your fund, the type of cover and the period of cover during the financial year.

- Private health insurance policy details – your private health insurance policy details, as provided to us from your private health fund (including the name of the fund, the amount of premiums you paid, and your share of Australian Government rebate received).
- Rebate Tier – based on your income you will fall into a PHIR threshold also known as tiers. As PHIR is income tested, different thresholds/ tiers apply depending on your family income for surcharge purposes. The PHIR amount depends on which rebate tier you fall within.
- Status – your situation (that is, couple, single or family).
- Tax claim code – this is the code that best matches your situation (for example, if you are in a relationship and if you have dependants).
- Your share of Australian Government rebate received – the amount the Australian Government has paid towards your private health insurance.
- Your share of premiums paid in the financial year – the amount of premiums you paid during the financial year eligible for the rebate (this figure is split between each adult covered by the policy).

Sale of property

What you need to do when you get a letter from us about reporting property sales on your business activity statements.

Last updated 28 November 2024

We receive data from state and territory revenue and titles offices around Australia on the purchase and sale of properties businesses make.

As these property transactions may be taxable and subject to Goods and services tax (GST), we match this information against what has been reported on business activity statements (BAS).

If your property sales haven't been reported correctly on your BAS, we may send a letter to you.

What you need to do

Our letter will include a schedule of your BAS lodgment where our records indicate the GST amounts reported at 1A and or 1B don't match our data on your property sales for the relevant reporting period.

You need to review this schedule and compare its information with your records. After completing your review, if you find that the reported the GST amounts on your BAS are correct, then you don't need to do anything more.

However, we may still follow up this letter to ask you to provide supporting documents, including:

- a contract of sale
- working papers showing how you calculated
 - your property sales and the GST amounts reported at 1A
 - GST property credit at label 1B.

You don't need to provide these documents unless we've requested.

If you find that your property sales haven't been reported correctly then you'll need to revise your BAS by logging into myID  or Online services for business. Your tax or BAS agent can also help you to revise it.

Taxable payments annual reporting

Check when to include payments for Taxable payments reporting system (TPRS) services in your tax return.

Last updated 9 December 2024

Reporting TPRS payments

We may contact you if you received payments for Taxable payments reporting system (TPRS) services, and you didn't include this business income in your tax return.

The services that come under the TPRS are:

- building and construction
- cleaning
- courier and road freight
- information technology (IT)
- security, investigation or surveillance.

Businesses that provide TPRS services and pay contractors to deliver them on their behalf are required to report these payments each year by lodging a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR).

Discrepancy letter

If you have received a Discrepancy letter, the letter explains that the amounts of income reported through the TPAR exceed the amount of business income reported in your tax return.

If you have checked your records and find a mistake (that is, you have under reported your income), then you should amend your tax return for that year.

If you don't agree with the information reported by the payer and they are known to you, you can contact them to verify the amounts reported.

If you still believe that payments were incorrectly reported to the ATO, you may contact us to discuss any suspected reporting errors and we will follow up with the payer on your behalf.

Before contacting the ATO, please confirm that:

- you have kept complete business records for the year in question
- you have requested that the payer alter incorrectly reported amounts in the TPAR
- you have allowed the ATO and the payer a reasonable amount of time to make changes to the TPAR. This should be at least 28 days from when the payer agrees to any changes to an existing TPAR

- if you have a Tax Agent, you have contacted them to ask if there is some other factor which explains the discrepancy.

Amended assessment from data-matching

How we notify you we have made an amendment or adjustment to your tax return and, what you can do if you disagree.

Last updated 27 June 2025

Data-matching adjustments or amendments

We issue an amended assessment (also known as an amended notice of assessment) if we amend or adjust your tax return.

We do this where we find an error or omission in the information you provide through data-matching with third parties.

Before we amend your tax return, we may contact you requesting additional information. Unless you respond with additional information within the specified timeframe, we will issue a notice of amended assessment.

Your notice of amended assessment will advise you of any amounts payable and how to pay. The due date for payment is 21 days after we notify you of the amounts.

Your right to a written explanation

You are entitled to request a written explanation regarding any adverse adjustments made to your tax return. To request this information, you need to contact us.

Your right to request a review

You can request a review of our decision if you either:

- believe the amended assessment is incorrect and can provide supporting documents
- have information not previously available during the initial review.

Your objection rights will not be affected by requesting a review of our decision.

Paying the debt in instalments

If you can't pay your tax debt on time, you may be eligible to enter into a payment plan.

Our payment plan estimator can help you work out a payment plan you can afford based on your circumstances. You can use it as a guide to set up a payment plan.

For debts $100,000 or less, you may be able to use online services or the automated self-help phone service to set up your payment plan.

Penalties and interest for errors and omissions

If we adjust your tax return, a shortfall interest charge (SIC) may be payable on any extra tax owing. We show the SIC amount on your notice of amended assessment.

Interest charges we apply are to:

- encourage taxpayers to pay their tax liabilities by the due date
- ensure that taxpayers who don't pay their tax liabilities on time, don't get an advantage over those who pay in full and on time
- compensate the government for the effect of late payments.

If you receive your notice of amended assessment and incur SIC on the payable amounts, you can request a remission of interest charges. You will need to explain why you think we should remit the interest and provide evidence to justify your request. We review each remission application on a case-by-case basis before a decision is made.

Shortfall interest charge deduction

You can claim a deduction for the SIC incurred before 1 July 2025.

Changes to the law in 2025 mean you can no longer claim a deduction for SIC incurred on or after 1 July 2025.

You can find the amount of SIC you incurred and paid, by checking the statement of account we sent to you.

Our commitment to you

We are committed to providing you with accurate, consistent and clear information to help you understand your rights and entitlements and meet your obligations.

If you follow our information and it turns out to be incorrect, or it is misleading and you make a mistake as a result, we will take that into account when determining what action, if any, we should take.

Some of the information on this website applies to a specific financial year. This is clearly marked. Make sure you have the information for the right year before making decisions based on that information.

If you feel that our information does not fully cover your circumstances, or you are unsure how it applies to you, contact us or seek professional advice.
